Welcome to Kevin K. Coleman Elementary School

Kevin K. Coleman Elementary School is located in the western section of Woonsocket known as Fairmount. Construction of the school was completed in 1963 and it was initially operated as an elementary parochial school by Sacred Heart Parish. In the spring of 1977, Sacred Heart sold the building to the city. The following September, the facility opened as Fairmount Elementary School. On September 30, 1981, the building was renamed as Kevin K. Coleman Elementary School in a special dedication ceremony in honor of a highly respected former mayor. The building now serves grades K through 5. Kevin K. Coleman School also offers remedial reading, resource, special education, ESL, counseling and speech and language therapy. A school-wide grant makes it possible for us to offer before and after-school literacy programs.
